

Problem Statement:

there are many food delivery robots around campus, there are none that are able to deliver to Campus Village

Details:

When you live in Campus Village, one of the first things you notice is how far of a walk everything is from your dorm. Whether you are walking to class, shops, or grabbing a bite to eat. Having a dining hall within campus village is the bare minimum that the University of South Carolina offers the Campus Village residents. Residents who would like to use a meal swipe are forced to walk around 15 minutes to grab food from Russel.

Recently, food delivery robots have been implemented on the South Carolina campus to relieve some students from walking great distances to use a meal swipe. However, the food delivery robots only deliver to buildings within a 5 minute walk of Russel house. The students who need the delivery robots the most don't even get to enjoy the amenities provided. Students who are further from Russel House should take priority in having food delivered because of the distance they have to walk.
