Project Part 1: Topic Selection – Tyler Bouldin

Website: Pickleball for Beginner's

For the web applications project, I have chosen pickleball as my topic. Pickleball is a very interesting and underrated sport that I think should get more coverage. Many people don't get into the sport because they see it as too easy or have too many rules. I will not be doing this project for a client but just for myself. I feel like I can get a good amount of content out of this sport since it's relatively lesser known and has a good amount of information about it.

I was thinking about also allowing people to buy pickleball merchandise and equipment as the server function of the site. We will be storing customers information, maybe even having a member section that can give special promotions. We will also be keeping track of the price of the products we are selling.
